STATUE AT CITY HALL IS MISSING

Bust of Hon. Levi Woodbury, the Only Ornament in the Building, Disappears.--Police are at Work on Case

The bust of Hon. Levi Woodbury is missing from City Hall. The absence of this statue was discovered on Saturday by Frank Simes, clerk of the water department who at once reported it to Mayor Yeaton. How long it has been away from its stand in the vestibule of the municipal building and how it came to disappear is a mystery. Mayor Yeaton got busy at once in consultation with the police department and Deputy Durker was assigned to the case. This piece of sculpture representing the figure of the noted man, was for years in the old City Hall and was removed recently to the present administration building when the city government changed its headquarters. It is very much missed from the fact that it was the only ornament to be seen about the place. The police admit that they are baffled on the start in opening up the hunt for the statue but hope to find it back on the shelf and also find some one behind the loss. Other articles said to have disappeared at times from the building, have also been called to the attention of the mayor, and he believes that the time has come to check any further work of this kind.

ELECTRICAL DEMONSTRATION

Members of Graffort Club Witness Practical Application of Electricity.

At Association Hall on Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. N. H. Carr of Boston gave a talk and practical demonstration of the latest electrical appliances, under the auspices of the Graffort Club. Upwards of two hundred interested women were present and the demonstration proved not only instructive but very enjoyable. The entire arrangement was under the direction of A. M. Sumner, Asst. Supt. of the Rockingham County Light & Power Company, and the demonstration was given on an electrical range and other electrical appliances. Mrs. Carr in her demonstration showed the many uses to which electricity could be put to use in the laundry and kitchen, as well as in the sick room. There was prepared on the electrical range a dainty lunch consisting of creamed chicken, on toast, olives and coffee which was served to those present. Each lady present was presented with a souvenir in the shape of a box of chocolates. The demonstration was conceded by all present to be one of the best ever held in this city, and Mrs. Carr held the attention of her audience from start to finish.

PLAN TO DO AWAY WITH TOLL BRIDGE ACROSS PISCATAQUA

"The Transporter Bridge," a New Style of Structure, Would Solve the Problem and Not Prove an Obstruction to Navigation

A Bridge of this Type Could be Used for Electric Cars, Autos, Teams and Pedestrians

That the people of this city and the adjoining towns are in earnest to do away with the toll bridges that have for years been a barrier to the progress of Portsmouth there seems to be no doubt and sooner or later these antiquated structures and customs must be done away with if our city is to enjoy the era of prosperity that it richly deserves.

The long bridge that spans the Piscataqua river between this city and Kittery is the most perplexing problem and the Herald today presents a plan which may solve the problem, which will not necessitate the purchase of the present structure and would not be so expensive to maintain in future years to come.

The accompanying picture represents a wonderful and magnificent structure, and here suggested as a new and perfect means of breaking down forever the barrier of the Piscataqua River between the States of New Hampshire and Maine, for every purpose save that of steam transportation.

The structure is new to the world, and its attractions and grandeur, and its perfect utility for every purpose intended, must be seen when finished and in operation to be comprehended. It is called "The Transporter Bridge" but two of which are as yet in operation at this date, but both of which have already proved absolute perfection of purpose, and such a far-reaching attraction as to make each an object of call to their respective localities, to hundreds of thousands annually, of the sight-seeing and pleasure-seeking public.

As above represented, the site chosen is from the ledge at the north-westerly extremity of Badgers Island to some point near the foot of Deer street, or steamboat wharf, and consists of four towers on each side of the river of trussed steel connected at their tops.

HERE IS OUR CHANCE ON SHIPWORK

Secretary Daniels Will Order a Submarine Boat Built at Navy Yard --Will Cost $525,000

The secretary of the navy is to award the building of a submarine boat to one of the navy yards. There is a chance for the local yard, and the people who are interested in building Portsmouth and our navy station.

The fact that this yard is particularly equipped for just such work should cause more than the usual amount of interest by the people of this city. In speaking of this work it can be safely said that Portsmouth has this advantage over the other stations, as the building can be carried out with extreme secrecy, and the work really done under lock and key in the Franklin shiphouse.

Now that the Boston yard has been taken care of with a supply ship, Philadelphia with a transport, New York and Norfolk yards with plenty of repair and construction work, our only competitor will be Charleston, S. C. Why not start the boom at once? This work is worth going after when it is known that the boat is to cost $525,000, and the local yard is not asking anything impossible. The heads of the several departments at the yard that have done so much to secure building contracts are not asleep on this matter and are going to work as they never have before. What is now needed is a fight on the part of our representation in Washington, and a

ORDER PROBE INTO HANGING OF AMERICAN

Consul Garrett Is Directed to Demand Vergara's Remains.

El Paso, Texas, Feb. 25. A. Michaels, who gave his address as 224 Vernon street, Brooklyn, and who said his father was a director of the Union Trust Company of Brooklyn, was released from the Juarez jail this afternoon.

He said Gustave Bauch is still there. Michaels was arrested 11 days ago he said, after a fist fight. In jail he said were the following Americans beside Bauch: Edward Trabard, Matt; Gaudins, H. T. Davis, V. J. Goodman, and a railroad man named Thornton.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The Mexican situation which has centered chiefly for the last few days upon efforts to determine how and why the Constitutionalist executed William S. Benton, a British subject, was broadened today when Consul Garrett at Nuevo Laredo was instructed to inquire into the hanging by Mexican Federals of Clemente Vergara, an American citizen.

The consul was directed by the state department to demand the body of the dead American from officers of the federal government in the vicinity of Hidalgo, Mex., where Vergara was killed. Earlier in the day Marion Letcher, American consul at Chihuahua had been instructed to insist that General Villa permit the delivery of the body of Benton to the widow for burial where she may wish.

There, with an explanation by Secretary Bryan to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of all the information on the Benton incident, and Mexico generally in the hands of the state department, constituted the principal development of the day.

General Villa's message of last night offering to permit the widow of Benton or relatives and an official to see the body, when examined is being taken to mean by the American government that a complete medical examination may be performed.

Secretary Bryan told the senators that he was insisting that two American representatives be permitted to see the body and that one of those be an army surgeon. He also has made inquiry as to exactly where the grave is located.

General Villa up to date today had not replied to the last request of Secretary Bryan for the surrender of Benton's body, but it is understood that the British Ambassador Sir Cecil Spring-Rice for the present will be satisfied if there is an opportunity for an autopsy which would determine whether Benton was shot by a pistol bullet or by rifle bullets from the firing squad.

It is thought the British Ambassador is anxious that evidence be secured first, believing disposition of the body can be taken up afterwards. The same army surgeon who will be detailed by General Scott at Fort Bliss to act with the British consul, Charles A. S. Devereux when he arrives at El Paso will report to the American government on the condition of Benton's body.

The British ambassador had a brief conference with Secretary Bryan early in the day and was kept informed later of the messages received by the state department.

That no change of policy for the embassy from Carranza and it is said that the state department has on previous occasions benefitted by Senator Stevens' activities for protection of Americans and other foreigners.

TODAY'S MOVING PICTURE STORY

"The Dilemma" (Biograph)

Chapter I.

Margaret Winston's marriage to Dick Norton was an event that filled her relatives with misgivings. Dick's early manhood had been so much with wild oats that people who knew him best had lost confidence in him. The girl was beautiful, accomplished, clever. She could have married many other men. Her intuition was so complete, however, that it swept aside every obstacle. They were married and went to live in a cottage Dick's father had provided for them.

The prophets of evil were quickly vindicated. The honeymoon was not over before Dick returned to his first love—John Harrington. A month of torture for the young wife followed. She was forced to the ignominy of quarreling with her husband over money. One day Dick reeled home a little drunker than usual. His wife was away. He found her purse, robbed it of its contents and left a note. When Margaret returned she found the cottage empty and on the table this scribbled on a bit of paper: "Just to say I'm tired of you, and am going to pick my way alone."

Chapter II.

"I'm tired of you!" No man had ever used those words to Margaret Winston before. Tired of her! The thought of it plunged her into depths of self-abasement, that seemed bottomless. She had lost a husband because she could not keep him. Then wounded pride called. In time the tragedy of her married life took its true place in the perspective. Under the cold light of reason love vanished. She grew to desert her husband. He was a drunken beast. He had deserted her.

After this came a period of depression during which she distrusted all men. Unconsciously she gave to them the attributes that had been her husband's. She was of that type of woman however, that nature had designed inevitably for matrimony. This mood passed and then Mark Henning entered Margaret's life. Mark Henning was "different." All women say that of the men they love, and when Margaret caught herself saying it, of Mark she knew she loved him.

For the first time in many months she knew she was happy. But now the obstacle of her marriage arose to mock her. Henning proposed and she was compelled to reject him. Her life to herself was not clear and the memory of that phrase "I'm tired of you" forbade her to explain why it was not clear. The hours that followed were the bitterest of her life. She learned how to hate. She hated her husband.

And then one day relief came out of a desert sky. A friend put into her hand a newspaper clipping. It said that the body of a man killed in a police raid on a dive had been identified as that of her husband. The identification had been made by the means of a ruler's card attached into the pocket of his overcoat.

Margaret, still keeping her secret, called Henning back. They married.

Chapter III.

When Dick Norton fled from his home with his wife's money in his hand his first stopping place was the nearest saloon. His notion of the ideal way of picking his way alone was to visit one saloon after another. At length the stolen money was spent. A bartender put him out of his last drinking place and he staggered to the nearest park where, upon a bench beside a tramp, he fell into a doleful slumber.

Then Destiny began to pick Dick Norton's way for him. With a saturnine grin, she woke the tramp. The tramp saw the sleeping man and the overcoat beside him. He stole the coat and Destiny sent him scurrying away into the night to die obscurely in a dive with the stolen overcoat upon him. The cold dawn woke Norton. He rose shivering and scrambled off to be swallowed, a living dead man by the signs of the city.

Chapter IV.

Margaret Winston's second marriage was all happiness in the affection. Mark Henning lavished on her, in his character, and above all, in his success, she found herself fully compensated for Dick Norton's brutal treatment of her. His partly nonchalant, partly scornful manner and his agreement to make the race on a platform rapidly declared for reform.

On the day following his nomination a great banquet was given for him at one of the hotels. His wife, indisposed and wishing to avoid the excitement of the banquet, remained at home.

While Henning received the plaudits of an admiring crowd, a burglar crept into his home. His wife, disturbed by a strange sound, surprised him in her chamber. She turned on the electric light. The burglar and the woman faced each other. The thief was Dick Norton.

The recognition was mutual and instant. In the woman it produced terror and anguish; in the robber, merely gloating. He made himself immediately at home. Rummaging the room before his wife's eyes with a view to collecting articles that were pawnable, he found Mark Henning's hanging coat. He turned on her with a startled question.

"Yes, the words were wrong from here—'I've married again. I believed you were dead.'"

The man received the announcement with anger, but anger soon gave way to cunning. The woman begged him to leave her. Her husband was coming she said. He knew nothing of the first marriage. The thief laughed at her. She offered him money, jewels, anything. While Norton stood irresolute, Henning entered.

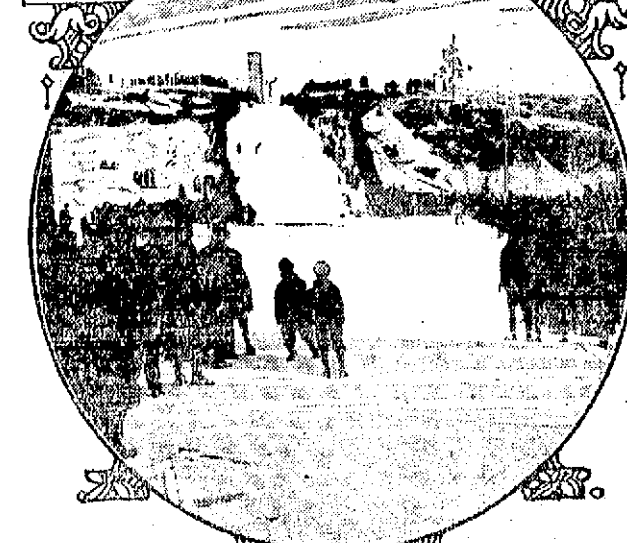

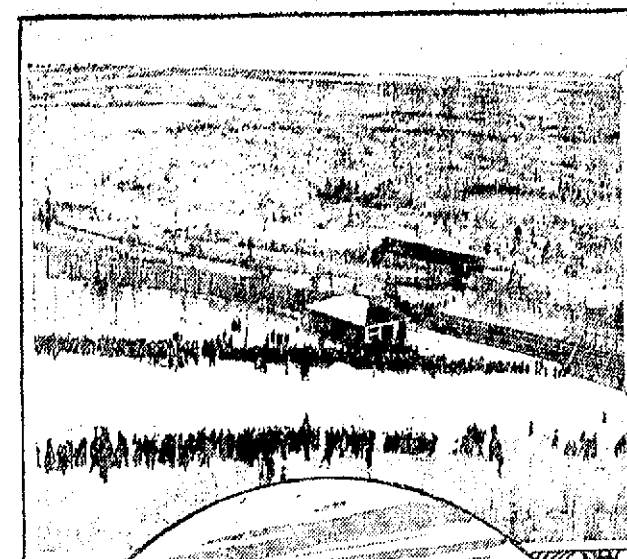

The wife in a few agonized words told everything. Henning turned on the thief. Norton demanded money. Henning opened the safe, and then overmastered by a sudden wave of passion leaped upon the intruder and bore him to the floor. They struggled until the wife parted them. Then the thief sullen and cowering reentered the room.

Chapter V.

But Dick Norton was determined that his secret should be known. The memory of the blows Henning had showered upon him roused everything that was evil in him. He would have his revenge and that revenge would be dramatic.

That night Henning was to make the great speech of his campaign. Norton went to the hall and established himself in a seat in a balcony overlooking the assembly. His plan was complete. From his place he proposed to rise in the midst of the meeting and denounce Henning as an ignorant.

The moment for his outburst arrived. Norton sprang to his feet and began to shout his charges. The crowd listened for a moment and then a half dozen men, believing the speaker a madman, seized him. Norton fought them off. A dozen others leaped upon him. In the melee he was flung over the balcony into the seats many feet below. A terrified crowd gathered around him.

Dick Norton was dead and was Margaret Winston's secret.

CHARACTER READING.

Reading character from handwriting is an old endeavor. But the reading of business character from a study of advertising is far more interesting and profitable.

Just glance over in this newspaper the advertisements of the merchants whose places you know.

Does not the merchant write his store character into his advertisements? Is it not possible to form a pretty good idea of the store from the manner in which it makes its announcements in the newspapers?

Merchants are coming to realize more and more that when they write an advertisement they are painting a business portrait of themselves—indicating their business character.

They are more careful in their statements, more modest in their language, and pay more attention to typography and illustration.

Advertising will be prepared this year even more carefully than ever before and there will be more of it.

And by the time taken it is going to be more interesting and profitable to the readers.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

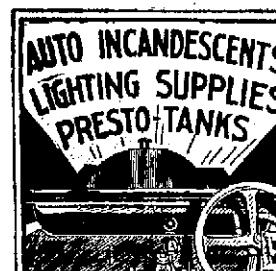

You Will Make No Mistake If You Follow this Portsmouth Citizen's Advice

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and not time to experiment. These are frequently symptoms of kidney trouble, and a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys should be taken in time.

Doan's Kidney Pills is a good remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has acted effectively in many cases in Portsmouth. Follow the advice of a Portsmouth citizen.

B. A. Berry, 147 Congress street, Portsmouth, N. H., says, "One of our family is employed on the railroad and the constant jolting and jarring of the cars weakened his kidneys. His back was very lame and at times his whole body became sore. Learning that Doan's Kidney Pills were a true remedy for kidney complaint, he procured a box at Phillips' drug store and began using them. Before long a cure followed. From that day to this kidney trouble has not returned. I also use Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me of lameness in my back and strengthened my kidneys."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Berry recommends. Foster-McBarn Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

SMALL NAVY MEN DEFEATED IN COMMITTEE-- OTHER NAVAL NEWS

Washington, Feb. 25.—Formal approval was given the administration's two-battleship programme by the House Naval Affairs Committee, yesterday, after the "small navy" men had made their final stand against it. The Navy Department's construction plans were changed so as to provide for six instead of eight destroyers, and for additional sub-marines. As reported to the House, the bill carries $140,200,000 exclusive of amounts to be spent for armor and armament, and fixes the building programme for the coming fiscal year as follows:

Two first-class battleships of the highest speed and largest possible radius of action, to rank among the world's dreadnoughts, $7,800,000 each, exclusive of armor and armament.

One powerful 1100-ton, 21-knot, sea-going submarine, $1,100,000.

Six torpedo-boat destroyers, $925,000 each.

Three coast-defence submarines of 500 tons each, $620,000 each, designed for use on the Pacific coast.

Four harbor defence submarines of smaller type, $375,000 each, intended for use on the Gulf coast and at Panama.

The bill provides that the defence submarines shall be built and maintained on the Pacific coast, provided that they can be built there as cheaply as they can be built on the Atlantic coast, "and laid down" on the Pacific coast. The two battleship programme was approved, 14 to 4. Representatives (Miss) Witherspoon (Miss) and Buchanan (Ill.) voting in the negative.

AMENDMENTS BY THE COMMITTEE.

"Small navy" men on the committee made a fight against the two-battleship authorization, and when a test vote showed their defeat they did not remain for the final vote on the building programme. Representative Witherspoon announced that he reserved the right to fight the bill on the floor. The two-battleship programme having the support of the Administration probably will be approved in the House by an ample majority. Representative Hensley moved to report a "no battleship" bill. He was supported by Representatives Witherspoon and Buchanan, Democrat. A "one battleship" programme was suggested by Representative Williams of Illinois. This motion was defeated 5 to 14, the only vote being Representative Williams, Hensley, Witherspoon, Buchanan and Baughman, all Democrats.

Representative Britten of Illinois Republican, offered an amendment providing for three new dreadnoughts. This was defeated by a vote of 7 to 11, those voting in favor of three ships being Representatives Lee of Pennsylvania, Gerry of Rhode Island and Hobson of Alabama, Democrats; and Farr of Pennsylvania, Browning of New Jersey and Britten, Republicans, and Stephens of California, Progressive.

Without serious opposition in the committee, an amendment offered by Representative Buchanan of Illinois, believed to be directed at the Steel Trust, was adopted. It provides that no vessel, supplies or material purchased by the Navy Department shall be bought under private contract unless the navy yards shall be unable to do the work of manufacture. This new provision may cause a fight on the floor, as it would force the navy yards to build vessels or manufacture materials sometimes at a higher cost than that asked by private interests.

CHANGE FORMULA FOR CHRISTENING.

Hereafter vessels of the Navy will be christened with the words "I name thee" in the name of the United States," instead of the old formula of "I christen thee." The change was announced today by the Society of Sponsors of the United States Navy, following its annual meeting here. The society also went on record in favor of a Federal law to prevent discrimination against naval uniforms. Mrs. Reynolds Thomas Tall of Philadelphia was chosen president and Secretary Daniels of the Navy Department and Mrs. Daniels, honorary member and vice president, respectively, of the society.

ASKS $15,000,000 FOR AEROPLANES.

A $15,000,000 aeroplane fleet was proposed in a bill yesterday by Representative L'Engle of Florida. He painted a picture of cities being destroyed by bombs from invading air craft and compared the foreign air fleets with that of the United States which he said was composed of twelve obsolete non-killing aeroplanes.

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN SCHOOLS.

"A radical difference between English and American systems of school organization is in the relation of elementary and secondary schools," says L. L. Kandel, of Manchester, England, in a bulletin on English elementary education just issued by the United States Bureau of Education. "The American high school receives its pupils after they have completed the elementary school course and builds up its curriculum on that foundation. The English secondary schools receive their pupils from a variety of schools—special preparatory schools or elementary schools—and the pupils on entering may vary in age from 10 to 14."

In general Mr. Kandel finds it difficult to institute a detailed comparison of the standards of elementary school work in the two countries, because circumstances are so different. "The American elementary school has been for nearly a century the national school, the common school of all the people. In England the elementary school is just in the process of developing into a national institution, a public service for national needs, instead of being regarded as a charity school for the education of the 'lower classes.'"

Another factor that renders comparison difficult, according to Mr. Kandel, is the inherent difference between the English and the American child. The latter, he declares, "is by nature more precocious, matures earlier, is by circumstances of his upbringing thrown more into the company of adults, with the consequence that he is less reserved and self-conscious and more alert than the former.

"American children have a far better knowledge of the history of their country and in some cases of general history than is to be found among English elementary school children. The same is certainly true of their knowledge of local and national government. In English language the American child has better command of oral expression; he is more given to debating and discussing than the English child. The reading of English literature is also more extensive in American schools, and in art work there is greater variety.

"But if the English elementary school has much to gain from the study of the American curriculum, American educational administration would profit as greatly from what is the strength of the English system—freedom of the individual school."

It is in the work of medical inspection and general welfare work that England's school system has recently made the most notable development, according to Mr. Kandel.

PENOBSCOT BAY FEARS ICE EMBARGO

Rockland, Me., Feb. 25.—A repetition of the ice embargo of 10 years ago in Penobscot Bay and its entrance, is threatened by the continued cold weather.

The Boston steamer has been withdrawn and supplementary service to the eastward from this port has been discontinued. An attempt will be made Saturday to run a steamer to New Harbor. The revenue cutter Woodbury has been busy in this section of the bay for several days, breaking ice and towing vessels to safe anchorage.

The fresh water ice which is being cut in this vicinity has assumed a thickness of 29 inches.

COMPENSATION FOR WIDOW

The court reversed the judgment of the New York Court of Appeals in the case of the widow of Howard Taylor against Sextus Taylor, her husband's father, involving the right to money recovered under the Federal employers' liability act for the death of her husband, killed by the Erie Railroad. The opinion holds that the money recovered goes to the wife and children, to the exclusion of parents. State laws to the contrary notwithstanding.

AMERICAN EXAMINATION

Gen. Villa's Proposal for It Accepted Without Waiving Further Movement to Demand Body.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Gen. Villa's proposal for an American examination of the body of William S. Benton, the Scottish ranchman whom he executed at Juarez, without permitting its removal from Mexico, has been accepted by this Government, without waiving, however, any further movement to demand its delivery on American soil.

British Consul General at Galveston was ordered today to proceed to El Paso at once, where he is expected to arrive tomorrow to go to the grave in Juarez with a delegation of Americans. Maj. Gen. Scott, commanding the United States troops there, will detail an American army surgeon and any other officers to accompany the British Consul. A member of Benton's family will be taken with the party.

That course has been decided upon pending the outcome of efforts to secure the surrender of the body to Benton's family, which will not be abated in the least. An immediate examination even under limited conditions, has been decided upon.

NO OBJECTION RAISED TO DANCE REGULATIONS

The Committee on Bills on Second Reading of the City Council, consisting of Councilmen Bennett, Duncan and Herriek, gave a hearing at the Mayor's office on Wednesday evening on the ordinance to regulate dance halls and dances.

There was a representative gathering and not a single objection was made to the bill as a whole, but some of the minor sections were discussed at some length. The question of the license fee was raised, and those interested in the passage of the bill stated that the question of fee was a minor point. It was not created for a source of revenue, but simply to give the police proper control of the dance hall, through reasonable regulations, and the committee intimated that a small fee only would be required.

THE GERMAN SIDE OF THE MANILA CONTROVERSY

Baden Baden, Germany, Feb. 25.—Admiral von Diederichs himself admitted he informed the British naval commander in Manila Bay, at the time of the Spanish-American War, that he would shoot any American officer who attempted to board a German warship "to make inquiry and establish her identity." In carrying out the orders of Admiral Dewey. This admission was made today in the course of a further narrative of events.

The strained relations between Admiral Dewey and the German admiral arose over the various Powers, which, according to Admiral von Diederichs, was quite promissuous. He admitted there was a certain justice in Admiral Dewey's complaint as to the German ships being constantly on the move, although this was necessary and in no way meant to be prejudicial. The bulk of the German squadron was about to be withdrawn, said the German commander, when the conflict arose over the right of visitation and he then decided to retain his whole force there.

Admiral von Diederichs blamed Admiral Dewey for the clash and intimated that it would never have arisen if the American commander had protested officially about two "trivial incidents." These included the firing of shots by the Americans in order to stop two German pinnaces. One of them was passing the American vessel and was held up because her flag was not showing plainly, and the other was approaching the Olympia at night with a message and was not promptly identified. The German admiral felt that Admiral Dewey's action was decidedly unfriendly. He sent his flag lieutenant, von Hülse, to make a formal protest against the action of the McCullough in halting the German cruiser Irene. In order to learn her identity. This, said the German admiral, was the incident incorrectly attributed to the Commodore by Admiral Dewey.

The American admiral retaliated with an announcement that no ship, commercial or naval, would be allowed to pass his lines, and announced his intention of sending an officer on board every warship arriving in the bay "to make inquiry and to establish her identity."

The word "inquiry" apparently aroused the ire of the German admiral, who identified it even today with a claim to the right to cross-examine any German commander.

Admiral von Diederichs says he discussed the situation with the British commander and told him that he would shoot any officer attempting to carry out Admiral Dewey's order.

A substantial victory for the Germans was obtained by Admiral von Diederichs in the final settlement, by which an arriving warship was to report itself to the American commander and afterwards he required on ly to show its flag.

According to Admiral von Diederichs, his call on the Spanish authorities was justified by the fact that no blockade had been formally proclaimed.

FAVORITISM FOR BRITISH OFFICERS.

Admiral von Diederichs, commander of the German warships, a little while with closely cropped gray mustache, with nothing of the appearance of a sailor, took issue with the statements made by Admiral Dewey in his autobiography, and said he felt himself forced to give his side of the case out of consideration for the honor of his country and his officers.

Admiral von Diederichs attributed the troubles between the Germans and the Americans largely to injudicious reports that appeared in the English papers in China, and the absence of definite regulations governing the blockade and the movements of foreign warships. He intimated, however, that a latent mistrust was prepossessing in a measure for the tension. He was desirous of cooperating with and supporting Admiral Dewey from the beginning he said, but the American admiral's fondness for Captain Childers, in command of the British squadron and the time Admiral Dewey spent with the British officers kept him from seeing as much of Admiral Dewey as he would have wished.

FOUNDATION OF TROUBLE.

The foundation of the trouble was laid with the arrival of the first German cruiser, the Irene. It was reported in Manila that the band on the Irene played the Spanish anthem when passing the American squadron, which was interpreted to mean that the Germans were coming to take the Spanish side. As a matter of fact, said the admiral, the band played the American anthem but the erroneous version reached the American sailors and excited ill-feeling. The concentration of the German squadron in Manila Bay to which Admiral Dewey objected was due, according to Admiral von Diederichs, to a purely fortuitous chain of circumstances. He believed that the German interests at Manila would be adequately protected by the small cruisers Irene and Cormoran, and planned to concentrate the balance of the squadron at Singapore, where recruits and time-expired sailors were to be transported. The emperor, however, sent a cable message to him to proceed to Manila and assume charge personally.

No mail steamer was available, and the flagship Kaiser, a first-class cruiser was undergoing repairs at Nagasaki. So Admiral von Diederichs and Flag Lieutenant von Hülse, now commander to Mexico, sailed on the protected cruiser Kaiser Augustus for Manila, arriving there about the middle of June. There was no room on the Kaiser Augustus for the admiral's staff and the Kaiser was compelled to follow with the staff board. Admiral von Diederichs declared that the account of the incidents, as related in the Dewey autobiography, contained many errors, which he attributed probably to defective memory of the events or to misinformation obtained from subordinates. He expressed regret that the Manila affair had been taken out of oblivion, having hoped that the misunderstandings and differences had been smoothed over. He and Admiral Dewey were friends, and had exchanged visits, letters and gifts the admiral said.

EIGHT HOUR LAW FOR WOMEN IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Feb. 25.—The new model eight-hour law for women workers in the National Capital went into operation today with laundry and many other service establishments threatening increases in charges to the public, and moderate priced restaurants preparing to replace their waiters with men. Department stores propose to comply with its terms by lengthening the lunch hour and 5 o'clock closing.

The law provides that no woman under 18 years old shall be employed before 7 a. m. and after 6 p. m. Government clerks and a few other classes of women workers do not come within its prohibitions, which cover principally manufacturing, mercantile and mechanical establishments, restaurants, hotels, restaurants and transportation offices.

Labour leaders declared the significance of the law would be felt immediately throughout the country, and that the state recognize it as model legislation. The fact that it passed both houses of Congress, without a dissenting vote, they said, was an auspicious sign of the times.

It has been said that from the way the company has been entertaining that all are qualifying as experts in the cooking line and some men insist on trying it at home. The supper was followed by remarks and a general social session.

Washington, Feb. 25.—James J. Hill, talked with President Wilson today about business conditions and said afterward that the outlook for prosperity was bright and that things were moving.

Mr. Hill was mentioned recently as a probable selection for the Federal Reserve Board, but Administration officials said today he was not being considered in that connection.

ICE BLOCKS CHANNELS

New York, Feb. 25.—The Providence was the only one of the Sound steamers which docked on time today. Smaller craft could not ply through the ice around Throgs Neck and Staple Stone light. They were forced to wait for the Providence to break a way through the ice floes and follow in the wake of the big steamer.

Ice in the lower bay delayed the docking of some of the Atlantic steamers from half an hour to two hours.

Civil Service Secure.

Undoubtedly there are many men in all political parties who would be glad to do away with civil service regulations and return to the old doctrine, "To the victors belong the spoils," but few of these are so frank in the statement of their views as Representative Edwards of Georgia, a Simon-pure democrat of the old school. He talks in a way to demonstrate that, whatever else may be said of him, he has "the courage of his convictions."

Mr. Edwards declares frankly that he would like to see the civil service abolished, and undoubtedly speaks the truth when he adds that "many of us" feel the same way. With the civil service out of the way, all negroes, he says, would speedily be eliminated from the government service and their places would be filled by democrats who, under a democratic administration, would hold all of the places. That this is politics Mr. Edwards admits, but he says our government is one of politics and parties and that "we can't keep the parties strong unless we give the positions to those who help win victories." The congressman says that if pulling republicans and negroes out of office is the attitude of a spoilsman, then he is a spoilsman, as he has strong convictions along that line.

But if negroes are to be retained in the service Mr. Edwards would have them segregated, and has introduced a bill providing for such segregation. He would have no white person compelled to work with a person of African blood or descent.

This is plain talk, and the old-fashioned Georgian is to be respected for his frankness. But his proposition comes altogether too late to receive serious attention. The civil service principle has been thoroughly established and the people are not going to abandon it. There may be cases in which it is evaded to some extent, but, on the whole, it is doing its work well, otherwise there would be no ground for such feeling as the southern congressman entertains. It has improved the quality of the public service in city, state and nation, and has won the support of all men who place the public service above party and personal advancement.

So far as segregating negro officials and employees is concerned, that is a question to be considered by itself, and one that reflects no credit upon those who have raised it. But civil service is here to stay. Let Mr. Edwards and those who share his views not forget that.

Speaking before the Harvard Medical School the other day a lecturer said that no one is entirely normal or abnormal. "Patients in insane asylums are in some regards more sane than we," he said. Not many of us will subscribe to that statement, but we all agree that the patients are quite as sane as we consider some other people we know.

Mayor Curley of Boston has resigned his seat in Congress, which had been made a little too warm for comfort by those who feel that a man should not hold two important offices at the same time. But didn't the late David B. Hill serve simultaneously for some time a few years ago as United States senator and governor of New York?

The Boston Globe wonders if Ex-President Taft, who addressed the girls of Smith College at their annual observance of Washington's Birthday, Monday night, could have told them the name of George Washington's first love.

The girls at Smith College undoubtedly care more for modern than ancient history.

The department of agriculture has some practical ideas. It thinks a year's course in an agricultural college would be worth more to youthful winners of agricultural prizes than a trip to Washington. It probably would, though it is not to be denied that a trip to the national capital is educational as well as pleasurable.

The government is anxious to know whether the shooting of Mr. Benton, a British subject, in Mexico, was done by a "squad" of one person or more. And it will know before the matter ends.

Curious that with the opening of Lent it should be discovered that fish are very scarce, owing to the recent hard winter, and that the price is correspondingly high.

A ~~woman~~ farmer is to raise sunflowers on a large scale, using the seed makes excellent chicken and hog feed. How long now before we shall be eating the stuff for corn meal?

The Panama canal is to be ready for commerce by July 1, according to the latest announcement. That should add a little extra zest to the celebration of the Fourth.

It is said that some congressmen are dancing the tango. It is to be hoped they will not track any of it into the halls of legislation.

In Colorado the other day the wind carried a man's hat 40 miles. And if didn't fetch up in a political ring, at that.

Tremendous Niagara Is In Grip Of Winter's Ruler, the Ice King

Mighty Niagara, greatest of American falls, is again in the grip of the ice king. The greater part of the outcrops is frozen and the ice bridge below the bridge has been formed. This picture shows one of the famous ice bridges of former winters when the falling, seething water below the falls was frozen over so solidly that people had no hesitancy in walking across.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD—TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless. Take a look at The Herald's classified column every day. It may be of interest to you.

WORTH KNOWING.

Congress (1794) first ordered that our flag should consist of fifteen stripes, alternate red and white, and fifteen stars, white on a blue field. There were fifteen States. The stars and stripes were equal, and a stripe and star were added with the advent of each new State. This was changed in 1818, as the States increased and the flag threatened to become too large, by reducing the stripes to thirteen, representing the original Union, and the stars were made equal to the number of States. No change has since been made except to add a star whenever the Union increased by the admission of a State.

DANCER SUES FOR $1000

Even the Grape Juice Used in the Performance Not Paid For.

Miss Virginia Tanner the Radcliffe graduate and classic dancer who is well known in this city, where she has entertained the Crafford Club, has brought suit for $1000 against the District Nursing Association of Millbury, Mass. Miss Tanner claims that the association failed to carry its part of an agreement. She appeared in three performances and was to receive $100 outright, all expenses and 50 per cent of the profits.

Not even the grape juice that was used in the fourth scene in all the "Hagons of wine" has been paid for, she asserts in her suit and she includes eight bottles of this beverage at ten cents a bottle, in the list of items in her suit.

Several hundred of the prettiest girls and best looking men in the town of Millbury took part in the performances. The audiences included society people from near and far and the affair was uniformly voted a success in spite of the rain that interrupted the performances.

Miss Tanner graduated from Radcliffe with the class of 1906, and is known as an ardent exponent of acrobatic dancing and pageantry. She had frequently danced in public and in private. She composed dances and staged pageants. She invents her own steps and arranges her own productions.

SEES IN LIQUOR RUIN OF RUSSIA

"Help!" Cries Witte; "Correct Mistakes I Have Made"—Imperial Council Acts.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says: During a discussion by the council of empire of the bill amending the regulations for the sale of spirits, Count Witte expressed the wish that serious mistakes perpetrated by himself might be rectified.

"Therefore," he exclaimed dramatically, "Help! Correct the mistakes which Witte committed, mistakes which are leading Russia to her ruin!" The only means of salvation, Count Witte continued, lay in limiting the revenue from the spirits monopoly. If he were a member of the government and had the right of access to the Emperor, he would beg His Majesty, without waiting for the discussion of the council of empire or the Duma, to issue a ukase, in the interests of the health

CURRENT OPINION

Thin Woman at Advantage Over Thirty.

Under thirty the very slight woman is in danger of contracting tuberculosis, but after that age she is safe. After that age come the dangers of the degenerative diseases, such as heart disease, Bright's disease and liver trouble, and this is the time that the thin woman has the advantage over her stout sister. The body of the heavier person, like the larger machine, requires more force and nervous energy to run it, and it is more likely to run down.

This is clear enough, for any one can imagine the greater tax on the heart it would be to carry around a body weighing one hundred and seventy pounds than to carry a body weighing, say one hundred and twenty pounds, more easily wear out. It would be almost impossible to say what was or what was not the ideal type of woman. There are no two individuals exactly alike, and to say that any one type is defective seems to me to be going a little too far.—Dr. Louis Dublin, Life Insurance Company Statistician.

of the Russian people, limiting the revenue of the spirits monopoly to, for instance, 900,000,000 roubles, and devoting the surplus to the organization of companies which make it their duty to fight the vice of drunkenness.

The council of empire unanimously decided to begin the discussion of the individual clauses of the bill. It was later decided to restrict the hours between which liquor might be sold.

Count Witte will be pleasantly remembered by some of our citizens who met him during the Russian-Japanese peace negotiations held in this city.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

"Under Cover" is on the eve of its twelfth week at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston. One has only to see this play to learn why it has scored one of the biggest successes seen in Boston in many years. While it is destined for other Metropolitan successes it will always be remembered as having been "born and brought up" in Boston. When the place first opened at this theatre last December, it was greeted by a small audience. It wasn't long however, before playgoers recognized it as an extremely brilliant play that merited success and patronage. It has already scored the season's record run and is now the most talked of play in Boston. There is a magnetic charm about "Under Cover" that makes an emphatic appeal to all classes of theatregoers. It travels with an unusual rapidity that you can scarcely keep pace with. It is full of excitement, surprises and thrills with an ending that is positively exhilarating. There are four acts to the play. The opening scene shows the office of the United States Customs. The chief inspector has just been informed that Steven Denby, a friend of a wealthy New York family, has smuggled into this country a pearl necklace valued at $2,000,000. He is allowed to slip by but is subsequently spotted upon by Ethel Cartwright, a society girl, who is forced into the work, in order to save her sister from disgrace. The series of

PRESENT THE 'COLONEL'S MAID'

Pleasing Entertainment Given by the Ladies' Aid Society of Rye.

"The Colonel's Maid," a comedy in three acts, was presented under the direction of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church on Wednesday evening, at Rye town hall, and included the following characters:

Col. Robert Rudd, a widower of No. Carolina.....Archibald Finlayson
Col. Richard Byrd, a widower of So. Carolina.....T. Herbert Perkins
Marjorie Byrd.....Mrs. Wallace Garrett
Bob Rudd.....Merton Drake
Mrs. J. John Carroll, a widow, and Col. Rudd's sister-in-law.....
Julia Carroll, her daughter.....
Miss Fannie A. Jenness
Ned Graydon, a young man of faulty memory.....Eugene Tuttle
Mr. James Baskom, Col. Rudd's lawyer.....Chester D. Drake
Ching-ah-Ling, the Chinese cook, a bit impertinent but by far the most important individual in the cast.....Harry Green

Each individual part was well interpreted and the comedy combined in a most laughable and delightful story. The old colonels, as bitter enemies, the love affair between Marjorie and Bob which was carried on clandestinely, the elopement of Julia and Ned after her mother had matched her with Bob; Col. Byrd's accusation against Col. Rudd, for kidnapping his daughter, the search of the detectives; the renewed love of Mrs. Carroll and Col. Byrd, to say nothing of Ching-ah-Ling, the Chinese cook, who was continually making trouble, all made the play a great success.

WHITMAN WILL ASK NEW TRIAL

Declines to Allow Becker to Go Free Without Fight.

New York, Feb. 25--District Attorney Charles S. Whitman will not personally assume the responsibility of telling Charles Becker go free on the charge of murdering the gambler, Herman Rosenthal. It was learned tonight.

At least it was indicated that the prosecutor's present intention is to move for a second trial of the former police lieutenant, whose conviction as Rosenthal's slayer was set aside by the State Court of Appeals yesterday.

It was reported today that Mr. Whitman, feeling that he could not secure a second conviction owing to the wording of the higher court's ruling concerning evidence presented at the first trial, planned to seek Becker's indictment on the charge of extortion and bribery instead, basing his allegations on information that an agent of the "strong arm squad" Becker or reputed gambling houses. Mr. Whitman tonight, however, denied he had such a move in mind.

Interest centered tonight on what hope the district attorney might have of finding witnesses to corroborate the testimony of Vallon, Rose, and Webber, who at the time of the presentation of Becker and the gunmen, received immunity on their promise to tell the truth. Shepp's testimony was in effect held up by the higher courts to be that of an accomplice.

Vallon late today broke the long silence which he had maintained since Becker's conviction and denied it was he who fired the shot that killed Rosenthal. Vallon's statement was made after Becker in using him today had declared he thought Vallon was the slayer.

THE SENATE REFUSES TO TAKE UP BOSTON & MAINE

Senator Lodge Objects to Interference With Present Plans.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The attempt of Senator Norris of Nebraska to secure the details of the pending treaty agreement between the Department of Justice and the New York, New Haven and Hartford R. R. failed in the Senate this afternoon. After Senator Lodge had opposed the Norris resolution and Senator Reed had questioned the propriety of interfering with the negotiations by the Attorney General and the Governor of Massachusetts, the Senate voted to lay the Norris resolution on the table.

"The trouble with the Boston and Maine Railroad is that it has been starved," Senator Lodge said in opening. "In years past, the former proprietors were not allowed to make the expenditure that was necessary for its proper maintenance."

Senator Lodge spoke in opposition to the resolution of Senator Norris of Nebraska, which requests the Attorney General to inform the Senate of any agreement now being made or contemplated by the Department of Justice with the management of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad with particular reference to any promise of immunity to present or former officers.

Senator Lodge said the resolution ought to be referred to the Committee on Judiciary, as the effect of the passage would be serious in view of the pending negotiations between the Department of Justice and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad. "The Boston and Maine Railroad is not suffering because it has been placed in debt by the extravagant or unwise expenditure," said Senator Lodge. "The Boston and Maine has no bonded debt. It has issued debentures, but not to an excessive extent."

"I may say," Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire interposed, "that the Boston and Maine unwise leased many small railroads at rentals which were not justified by the earnings."

"On Paying Basis in Few Years."

"That is true," said Senator Lodge. "But it is also true that there has not been enough money to pay up the railroad. I do not know what the Attorney General or the Governor of Massachusetts can do except that I understand the purpose is for the New Haven to place the Boston and Maine stock in the hands of trustees, who will operate the same."

"It is not correct that the purchase of stock in the Boston and Maine by the New Haven was unlawful. It was not contrary to the laws of Massachusetts, at least it may have been in violation of the Sherman law. The New Haven has spent a great deal of money on the Boston and Maine, on improvements and for equipment."

"My personal belief is that the reorganization of the Boston and Maine from the New Haven and in the hands of "The Attorney General and the Governor of Massachusetts must be allowed to proceed as far as they have power to reorganize this railroad and resume this property. They should not be interfered with in the proceedings, and the New Haven railroad should not be made a political football in the United States Senate."

After Senator Reed of Missouri characterized the resolution as a reflection upon the integrity of the Attorney General, he moved that it be laid on the table. By a vote of 33 to 23 the Norris resolution and the Clapp amendment were so disposed of. The action was satisfactory to Senator Lodge.

GABY DESLYS.

The pink and pristine Gaby Deslys, more bewitching than ever and with her marvelous collection of new Paris gowns, comes to the Shubert next Monday evening for a stay of but one week. Her visit is a limited one, because Gaby is making her farewell tour and must hurry back to Paris. She is playing the leading role in "The Little Parisienne," a modern three-act musical comedy and in the supporting Winter Garden Company are Harry Piller, Forrest Hall, Fritz von Busling, Edgar Atchinson-Ely and others and a large chorus. For this engagement the matinees will occur on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday. Gaby, without question, of all foreign stars, has risen to the greatest heights of fame. Not satisfied with resting on her laurels, Gaby has worked industriously to perfect her art as a singer and dancer. Even during the summer, when she returns to France, she works constantly. This season she will be seen in the prima donna role of a three-act musical comedy. In "The Little Parisienne," she will, of course, be given every opportunity to display her talent as an actress, a singer and dancer. With Mr. Piller she will do four or five specialties that have brought fame to both of them at the Winter Garden, and in many European musical halls. Among them he mentioned the well known "Gaby Glimp."

Coming here almost direct from Paris, Gaby brings with her many gowns that have never been worn. They are all the very latest Parisian creations. Most of them have been designed by Gaby, while she has had the help of the leading dressmakers of the French capital. Her stage gowns are all as in keeping with Gaby's exotic and bizarre. She prides herself on being the best and most expensively dressed woman in the world, which is no hazard. She maintains and very justly, that two-thirds of her time is given up to the designing and fitting on of costumes, the selecting of material, consultation with her dress-makers, etc. When in America, however, she has few if any clothes made here. Being Parisian, she believes in wearing only garments that come from her idolized city.

ICE CAME NEAR SINKING A FISHING SCHOONER

Gloucester, Feb. 25.—Capt. Nathaniel Greenleaf of the schooner Kineo arrived here with 4000 pounds of haddock after a Bank voyage in a gizzard which, he says, was the most severe of his 40 years' experience.

The Kineo was caught in a lee mail that nearly dragged her under and the spray froze so rapidly that a half-inch rope soon assumed the size of a man's body.

Three weeks ago the Kineo was on Green Bank when the northwest snow storm broke. The Kineo rode it out at anchor with 450 fathoms of new cable out, which successfully stood the strain. All attempts to get the anchor were useless.

The waves made a clear breach over the deck as they struck. All hands with improvised face masks to prevent from bite were steadily engaged in pounding the ice in order to free the craft of the weight that was weighing her under.

For four days steadily this fight for life continued with the thermometer 20 degrees below zero, the wind a hurricane and the snow coming down in blinding sheets. On the third day an enormous comb raked the craft from stem to stern, breaking the main boom and foremast.

On the fifth day the gale moderated and, removing the accumulations of ice from windlass and housepipe, the crew succeeded in getting the anchor and the Kineo, transformed into a floating iceberg, headed for the Gulf Stream, where the warm water water had helped in clearing the ice from the craft.

Saturday evening the Kineo ran near an abandoned three-master about 10 miles southeast of Brazil Rocks. She was badly waterlogged and so thickly covered with ice that her name could not be discerned, but Capt. Greenleaf made out the letters "Yonkey" with the halting part "Bridgeport," but whether Nova Scotia or otherwise could not be determined.

Have you seen the placards displayed in the windows announcing the "Everybody at church" Sunday?

of transportation and long walks and delays in storm and sunshine to every individual patron from one state to the other.

If our figures cannot be denied, then the said railway alone could well afford to borrow at four per cent. interest, the total cost of such an attractive structure; maintain and operate the same; pay the said interest annually on the said total expenditure; land and receive an increased through of patrons, in one-quarter of the time it now takes by ferry, and without change, on Portsmouth Parade, instead of at an unbecomingly water-front approach, at the foot of a steep and slippery hill, and among a forest of broken and fast decaying piling, and put upwards of $5000 every year of the sum now paid as the cost of ferrying in their treasury.

Now, instead of the commissioners of Rockingham and York counties taking over a structure—the Portsmouth bridge—that is certainly not "a thing of beauty" or attraction, with its "undeniable cost of thousands" annually for depreciation, and remembering that $25,000 of indebtedness in a permanent structure is a far more desirable burden than $1000 of perpetual annual cost of maintenance—because in the former they have always the value, while with the latter it becomes an annual loss—would it not be better for these officials to join with the railway company, and together with the two counties and the railway directorate, the city of Portsmouth and the town of Kittery, construct and maintain a continuously operated free transporter bridge over the deep Piscataqua and thus forever cease to do battle for passage over its ever rushing and rising and falling waters?

Since writing the above we are reminded that but a few years ago a representative of this city obtained a charter from the New Hampshire legislature authorizing the construction of a bridge over the Piscataqua river, with the provision—which, if the ordinary bridge was intended, would make the charter absolutely valueless—that it take effect subject to permission of the United States army engineers.

The above suggested transporter bridge obviates every navigable objectionable feature that could or would be possibly raised. It impresses by its photo alone every mechanic with the conviction that it thoroughly overcomes and dispenses every objectionable feature—many of them absolutely unsurmountable—hither raised, for breaking down the barrier of the Piscataqua; especially at the most advantageous and desirable point, and so near the ocean coast; and its novelty alone is surer than anything yet proposed to bring countless thousands to view and to use this first transporter bridge in all the Western Hemisphere.

We believe it will be seen at a glance that no piece of construction in the world could have been invented to better meet our local disadvantages and long-felt wants, or anything better fitted to solve a problem with which we and our fathers long have struggled.

The free passage of the Piscataqua by electricity surely sounds good and progressive.

SEEK TO MAKE ARRANGEMENTS WITH CANADA

Gloucester, Feb. 25.—A. Paul Andrews, Thomas J. Carrol, president of the Board of Trade, and Capt. George H. Peoples, past president of the Master Mariners' Association, will start tomorrow afternoon for an appointment with Sec. Bryan at Washington Thursday, where they will be joined by Dudley Field Malone, Secretary of the Port of New York for a conference in behalf of Gloucester fishing interests.

Mr. Malone has been here several times recently and believes that an injustice has been done which may be righted by a Democratic Administration. Mr. Andrews addressed an assemblage of the Master Mariners' Association at their rooms late this afternoon.

He said that in the Taft reciprocity treaty and the Underwood Tariff both admitting green cured fish free, a great wrong was done, when in return for free markets for green cured fish the concessions were not obtained from Canada, which were embodied in the Bayard-Chamberlain and Blaine-Bond treaties. These treaties were rejected by the United States Senate for free admittance of her fish products Canada, he said, was eager to concede fishing within the three-mile limit, free access to bait supply, from transshipment of fish to this country, and free access to supplies of all kinds.

In the Taft treaty, which Canada has only to accept to make it effective absolute freedom of entrance was accorded fish of all kinds, without the compensating privileges embodied in the rejected treaties. The Underwood bill retains the duty on prepared fish only, absolutely nothing being granted for the green fish privilege.

The United States fishing interest is accorded certain rights of bait, purchase of supplies, and shipment of men only upon a payment of $1.50 per tonnage. United States citizens are not allowed to fish or to prepare for fishing within the three-mile limit and have only meager rights of shelter in Canadian ports. In fact the arrangement was termed "jughandled" all on one side. Sec. Bryan will be urged to use his influence to restore this balance to a more equitable reciprocity basis.

Mr. Andrews will also urge a hospital ship for the Banks. This can be accomplished, he believes, practically without expense by detailing a revenue cutter for this service from spring to fall. The transfer of two physicians with medical equipment in his opinion is all that is necessary for the initial experiment.

OUR DUTY TO MEXICO.

Recognize Huerta and Hold Him to Strict Responsibility.

To the Editor: Affairs in Mexico have reached a crisis where it comes into the mind of every patriotic American to ask himself: What must our country do?

The President, at this trying moment, is entitled to an expression of opinion from every thoughtful citizen to help him forward in the right path. Party considerations disappear. We should speak as Americans, earnest to do what is best for a speedy settlement of these difficulties. What ought to be done now, in view of this wronging of Villa upon a British subject?

Let me say that I have talked of late with many persons deeply interested in what has been going on across the border. Some of these men have lived in Mexico and are familiar with Mexicans, their habits and political experiences. The universal opinion is that President Wilson should recognize Huerta and hold him henceforth responsible for violation of law and order affecting the lives and property of foreign residents.

There need be no fear of loss of prestige on the part of the President if he frankly admits that he now sees that the policy heretofore adopted has resulted in failure. On the contrary, a frank avowal to that effect will gain for him the respect and admiration of the world. Gladstone won lasting honor by his declaration that his famous Newcastle speech foreshadowing recognition of the southern Confederacy was a mistake.

These words are written in the hope that the President may see in them and in similar utterances how united and how strong is public sentiment in the direction of a new departure. Let this step be taken and his countrymen will feel assured they possess in him a safe and a true leader. The opportunity is now here to do that which will make for peace and an honorable ending of a distracting and dangerous condition of our foreign affairs.—Frank W. Hackett in the Washington Herald.

The third week of that widely heralded and long-awaited for dramatic sensation, "Within the Law," still continues to play to capacity audiences at the Majestic theatre where it has settled down for a long run. Theatre-goers are advised that the company in this city is the original one direct from the Eltinge Theatre, New York, and a 75 weeks sensational run. The members of this company are distinguished artists whose individual triumphs in other plays have placed their names in the front rank of the metropolitan favorites. Heading the cast is Miss Jane Cowell, considered the most beautiful actress on the American stage, and others in the cast are Florence Nash, Grace Caldera, William B. Mack, Wilton Taylor, Paul Everett, Kenneth Hall and Dorothy Evert. Miss Cowell and Mr. Caldera will be remembered for their last visit here during the run of "The Gambler" at the same theatre that Mr. Veiller's play is now being presented. A few facts and figures regarding "Within the Law" are given here, with details which have formed the basis for countless columns of space in the newspapers and magazines in the world. "Within the Law" was written by Bayard Veiller, a native dramatist and produced by Selwyn & Company of New York. Among the notable citizens of this country to endorse the play's overwhelming interest and worth by personal letters to the producers are Woodrow Wilson, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. P. H. Belmont, Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, the eminent social and suffrage leader; Julius Harbinger, sheriff of New York county; David Belasco, wizard of the American drama; George S. Dougherty, police commissioner of New York, and others equally prominent. "Within the Law" was produced at the Eltinge theatre, New York, on Sept. 11, 1912, and ran there continuously until it moved to this city on Feb. 15th, playing a 75 weeks' engagement. It is also in its first year in England and Australia, and is at present the reigning sensation in the British metropolis. There are 100 companies playing throughout this country, and it is estimated that "Within the Law" has larger receipts than any play of any period covering a period of ten years.

SNOW IN MISSISSIPPI

At Laurel Six Inches Fell—At New Orleans it Melted on Touching the Ground—Temperature 34.

New Orleans, Feb. 25.—Snow fell over a large portion of Mississippi and places in Louisiana today affording residents of that section of the country an unusual sight. It was much colder on the Gulf Coast and sleet fell but no snow.

The heaviest fall reported was at Laurel, Miss., where the ground was covered with a six-inch layer with more coming down.

Fruit trees and garden products probably will suffer, as the thermometer registered 32 degrees or lower almost to the coast.

The light snow which fell here, for the first time since 1903, melted as fast as it fell. The temperature here was 34.

New York 1 Above Zero at 7.30 a. m.

New York, Feb. 25.—The gold wave which made itself at home in New York yesterday, is dying hard, though the weather man says it is doomed. At 7.30 this morning street thermometers registered 1 above zero which was colder than at 5 a. m., when the same instruments registered two degrees above the zero mark. The forecast, however, is for warmer weather today and tomorrow, with moderate north and northeast winds.

Columbus, Ga., First Snow in 15 Years.

Columbus, Ga., Feb. 25.—Two inches of snow fell here early today. It was the first snow of consequence in 15 years.

THE BUILDERS

"Each man's life
The outcome of his former living is,"
So taught the nations by the summer seas.

His mystic life philosophy a wood
Of breath of God and creeping things
Of earth.

Of dust and dross and gleaming threads
Of gold,
The Brahmin, musing with his eyes Downward.

Upon the marvel of the many lives,
Saw in the crystal of the sunlit stream,
Topaz and amethyst and lizard,
The shimmering fishes glided too and fro.

And cried, "Behold in only forms
Like these Hath dwelt this human soul, ascending through Strange shapes of bird and beast, each living shape.

While turns the ceaseless wheel, for
each man's life,
The outcome of his former living is!"
Well hast thou seen, O seeker of the truth,
Well hast thou said, O seer of things that are!

From shape to shape through changes manifest
Our endless lives roll on in linked chains
Of deeds and sequence, evil wrought,
and good;

And what we shall be doth not yet appear,
The deeds we wrought in all the vanished years,
The thoughts we harbored as the instants sped;

Things seen and heard and wondered at and felt;
Yea, all the life we lived from day to day,
Have fashioned us as we behold un-selfed.

And still we grow and change and build again
New lives from embers of forgotten days

That passing come no more, and each man's life
The outcome of his former living is.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA

Like the great army of organ hunters who seek the most for their money at the department stores, the present day theatregoers look for the best and most for their money at the theatre. For this reason amusement seekers can assure themselves of the biggest theatre bargain at Gordon & Lord's Scollay Square Olympia, Boston's newest and most magnificent playhouse. This theatre which is installed with a great Moller pipe organ, operated by an organist of international fame, is located in Scollay Square a few steps from Tremont street, almost in the very heart of the shopping district. One can step into this beautiful theatre at any time of the day and procure for their money the longest and best show of vaudeville and feature photoplays given in the city. An entire bill however runs approximately four hours without a single repeat. This fact the management challenges anyone to disprove or equal in its quantity and quality. Why not become a regular patron of the Olympia? The theatre is equipped with every modern facility for the safety and comfort of its patrons. There is a big bargain bill every Friday when the regular program is augmented by several acts of vaudeville and picture plays. The regular Sunday night concert is of course an attractive feature. The prices are 10c, 15c and 25c. The box seats are 35c and 50c.

WILL HAVE BIG BEARING ON THE PURE FOOD LAW

Washington, Feb. 25.—The decision of the Supreme Court yesterday in the so-called "bleached flour" cases, is considered of momentous importance in adding to the difficulty of Government in enforcing the Pure Food Act. Under this decision, the Government in order to bluff flour that have been "bleached" or adulterated will have to prove that the added substance is present in sufficient quantity to injure health. The mere fact that the deleterious substance is present will not be sufficient. This decision was handed down in the case, in which the United States, as petitioner, appeared against the Lexington Mill and Elevator Company on a writ of certiorari from the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Eighth Circuit. The evidence showed that the Lexington Mill and Elevator Company had used on a certain shipment of 625 sacks of flour what was known as the Alsop process of bleaching, by the use of nitrogen peroxide gas generated by electricity. This process resulted in the insertion of 1.8 parts of poison per million calculated as nitrogen. The respondent company admitted all the allegations about the Alsop process but contended that the poison was not in sufficient quantities to be injurious.

The court held that the District Court had erred in that it took insufficient evidence to prove that the bleaching process actually disclosed defects in the flour and erred further in instructing the jury that the use of any poison whatever constituted adulteration within the meaning of the act.

"It is cannot," by any possibility, when the facts are reasonably considered, injure the health of any consumer," said Mr. Justice Day in giving the opinion of the court, "such flour, though having a small addition of poisonous or deleterious ingredients, may not be condemned under the act."

The case was sent back for another jury trial.

Department of Agriculture officials were not prepared to say what action they would take as a result of the court's decision. When a copy of the complete decision is in their hands, which will be the latter part of this week, there will be a consultation between Secretary Houston, Francis G. Caffey, solicitor of the department, and Dr. Carl Alsop, chief chemist, in charge of the pure food law administration, to discuss the matter. The principal effect of the decision, will, every expert testimony in practically every case the Government prosecutes for violation of the pure food law, and consequently the winning of a much smaller percentage of suits. More of the famous "poison squads" originated by Dr. Wiley while he was chief chemist, may be necessary to determine the exact amount of injurious substances which a person may eat without being harmed thereby.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is a Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat Which Forms Uric Acid

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and lazy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clogged you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, or else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad, you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to "reek relief" two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good reliable physician or at once get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.
